Flights

The flights are broken up into code A and Code B flights. Code A flights are to a destination, and the code B flights are return flights from Code A. You will find that code A and B flights have the same flight number, just different codes. Mix and match the A and B flights to make your flight line with 3500+ flights available. You must complete the flight line by ending up at the same airport (unlimited stops) where you started. Then you can start a new flight line.

Pacific requires pilots to use the flight lines for up to 1000 service hours. Then, they become an Elite pilot. In vaBase, it is required that you depart from the last airport you landed at unless you take a Jumpseat flight Jumpseat flights will cost money from your virtual bank account

---

Revision #3
Created 14 March 2024 05:54:33 by CEO
Updated 21 May 2024 05:08:39 by CEO